And we were peeling quinces. I've seen you in the sportive throng, When n irth and jest flew round,
Have heard your melody of song,
Your music's sweetest sound;
But you ne'er yet have seemed so fair,
Or so much like a princess,
As on that morn when I was there As on that morn when I was the And we were pecling quinces.

I've seen you on a Sunday morn,
When maideus look their sweetest,
Mildly seeming as the fawn,
The gentlest yet the flectes;
But you ne'er yet have seemed so fair,
Or so much like a princess,
As on that morn when I was there
And we were peeling quinces.

I've seen you in the mystic dream,

Empress of its rosy bowers,
Your smile was the day god's beam,
Yourself the pearl of flowers;
But you ne'er yet have seemed so fair,
Or so much like a princess,
As on that morn when I was there And we were peeling quinces.

I've seen you, Jessie, everywhere,
Where leveliness is seen.
Have always owned your beauty there,
And crowned you beauty's queen;
But you ne'te yet have seemed so fair, Orso much like a princess, As on that morn when I was there

And we were peeling quinces. HUMOROUS.

- A good story is told of an eccentric old gentlemen who although occasionally addicted to the habit of swearing was still punctilious in regard to saying grace at his table and this he never omitted on any occasion. The story runs that on a certain occasion, the old gentleman invited a sea captain, a jolly old weather beaten tar of his acquaintance to dine with him. They sat down to dine, and the old gentleman, according to custom, commenced saying grace; but the captain, whose attention had been diverted for the moment, hearing the old gentleman speak, thought he was addressing him, and turned to him with-"What did you say, Squire." "Why, d-d it, I'm saying grace!'

- Here is another school boy's composition: Winter is the coldest season of the year, because it comes in the winter mostly. In some countries winter comes in the summer, and then it is very pleasant. I wish winter came in summer in this country, which is the best government the sun ever shone upon. Then we could go skating bare foot, and slide down hill in linen trowsers. We could snow ball without getting our fingers cold-and men who go sleigh riding wouldn't have to stop at every tavern and warm, as they do now. snows more in the winter than it does at any other season of the year.

- We heard a very worthy old freedman, who is beginning to understand the working of the League, give his opinion of it the other day, as follows:

"I tell you, de League and de darkies jis remind me of when old mass'r an me used to put up de fattenin hogs. I'd take some corn and scatter it 'long, and soon as hogs 'ud taste it, dey'd follow right 'long, picking up de grains, and never lookin ahead; and de fuss thing dey know'd dey was in de pen and de And dere dey staid till we knock'd dem on de head."

other night gave a successful answer to the invoked question, "What is next to a man?" His shirt, of course; but the fellow who put the question, "When is a man not a man?" must have been surprised to find that the male biped is not himself when he's a bed, loveable, gracious, kind of heart, beautifulwhen he's awake, when he's a blow in the worthy of all respect, of all esteem, of all ose when he's a comb in his hair when he's a pear in his nails, when he's a pick in his her health right cordially in this bumper of teeth, when he's a wink in his eye, when he's a button in his clothes, when he's a swallow in his hash, when he's a scratch in his ear, and last but not least, when he's a bolt in [Applause.]

RULES ON HEALTH .- Never hang yourself out of an open window when you go to bed. In cold weather, always wear thick, warm clothing about your body. If you haven't money enough to buy it, attend an extinguishable conflagration in the vicinity of a first-class clothing shop. If you are quite a small baby, be careful that there are no pins in your clothes, and always take a drink of milk-punch out of a bottle with a gum thing on the nozzle before you get into your cradle In cating raw oysters, always peal the shells off before swallowing. The shells are indigestible, and apt to lie on the stomach.

LOVE OF COUNTRY .- It is stated that during the war a patriot in Maine felt ashamed of remaining at home while his brethren were in the field, and he accordingly addressed the following letter to Governor Washburn :-"Mr. Gov. Washburn sir I feal as thoe I had aught to be doing something for my country, and have you a curnals place for me I shuld like to have it if you hav write me and give me instructions what you want me to do.

Yours truly." Going .- " I shan't be with you a great while, Jane," said Mr. Melter; "I shan't stay here a great while." "Oh, Mr. Melter, how can you talk so?" said Mrs. Melter, with a lugubrious expression of face. "Because," continued he, "I feel as if I was most gone, and that I was just passing away like a cloud before the rising sun." Mr. Melter verified his prophecy the next day by running away with a sympathizing sister.

THE PRECISE WORDS .- A witness was examined before a judge in a case, who required him to repeat the precise words spoken .-The witness hesitated till he riveted the attention of the entire court upon him; then fixing his eyes earnestly on the judge, began, t please your honor, you lie and steal, and get your living by stealing!" The face of the judge reddened, and he immediately said. "Turn to the jury, sir."

"Mark Twain" Discourseth on Woman.

At a banquet of the Newspaper Correspondents' Club, given at Washington, Saturday night, "Mark Twain," the humorous lecturer, responded as follows to a sentiment to woman:

Mr. President: I do not know why I should have been singled out to receive the greatest distinction of the evening-for so the office of replying to the toast to woman has been regarded in every age. [Applause.] I do not know, why I have received this distinction, unless it be that I am a trifle less homely than the other members of the Club. But be this as it may, Mr. President, I am proud of the position, and you could not have chosen any one who would have accepted it more gladly, or labored with a heartier goodwill to do the subject justice, than I. Because, sir, I love the sex. [Laughter.] I love all the women, sir, irrespective of age or color. [Laughter.]

Human intelligence cannot estimate what we owe to woman, sir. She sews on our buttons, [laughter,] she mends our clothes, [laughter,] she ropes us in at the church fairs-she con fides in us; she tells us whatever she can find out about the little private affairs of the neighbors-she gives us good advice-and plenty of it-she gives us a piece of her mind, sometimes-and sometimes all of it-she soothes our aching brow-she bears our childrenours as a general thing. In all the relations of life, sir, it is but just and a graceful tribute to woman to say of her that she is a brick. [Great laughter.]

Wheresoever you place woman, sir-in whatsoever position or estate-she is an ornament to that place she occupies, and a treasure to the world. [Here Mr. Twain paused, looked inquiringly at his hearers and remarked that the applause should come in at this point. It came in. Mr. Twain resumed his eulogy. Look at the noble names of history! Look at the Cleopatra !- Look at Desdemona !look at Florence Nightingale !-look at Joan of Arc !- look at Lucretia Borgia! [Disapprobation expressed.] "Well," said Mr. Twain, scratching his head doubtfully, "suppose we let Lucrecia slide." Look at Joyce Heth!-look at Mother Evel-[Cries "Oh!" | You need not look at her unless you want to, but, [said Mr. Twain reflectively, after a pause,] Eve was ornamental. Sirparticularly before the fashions changed! I repeat, sir, look at the illustrious names of history! Look at the Widow Machree!look at Lucy Stone !- look at Elizabeth Cady Stanton !- look at George Francis Train [Great laughter.] And, sir, I say it with bowed head and deepest veneration, look at the Mother of Washington !- she raised a boy that could not lie-could not lie- [applause.] But he never had any chance .-Oh! Oh!] It might have been different with him if he had belonged to a newspaper correspondent's club. [Laughter, groans, hisses, cries of "put him out." Mark looked around placidly upon his excited audience and resumed.] I repeat, sir, that in whatsoever position you place a woman she is an ornament to society, and a treasure to the world. As a sweetheart she has few equals and no superiors-[laughter,] as a cousin she is convenient; as a wealthy grandmother, with an incurable distemper, she is precious; as a wet nurse she has no equal among men! [Laugh

What, sir, would the people of the earth be without woman? A Man Nor a Man .- The minstrels the | They would be scarce, sir-almighty scarce ! Then let us cherish her, let us protect her, let us give her our support, our encouragement, our sympathy, ourselves, if we get a chance. [Laughter.]

But jesting aside, Mr. President, woman is deference. Not any here will refuse to drink wine, for each and every one of us has personally known, and loved, and honored, the very best one of them all-his own mother.

Go on, Sir. Go on!

Arago says, in his "Autobiography," that his master in mathematics was a word or two of advice, which he found in the bindings of one of his text-book. Puzzled and discouraged by the difficulies he met with in early studies. he was almost ready to give up the pursuit. Some words which he found on the wasteleaf used to stiffen the cover of his paperbound text-book caught his eye and interested him.

"Impelled," he says, "by an indefinable curiosity, I dampened the cover of the book and carefully unrolled the leaf to see what was on the other. It proved to be a short letter from D'Alembert to a young person disheartened like myself by the difficuties of mathematical study, and who had written to him for counsel.

"Go on, Sir, go on," was the counsel which D'Alembert gave him. "The difficulties you meet will resolve themselves as you advance. Proceed, and light will dawn and shine with increased clearness on your path." "That maxim," says Arago "was my greatest master in mathematics." Following out these simple words, "Go on, Sir," made him the first astronomical mathematician of his age. What Christians it would make of What heroes of faith, what sages in holy wisdom, should we become, just by acting out that maxim, "Go on, sir, go on."

Self-Sacrificing.

When the plague raged at Marseilles, and all the city was panic-stricken, the physicians assembled at the Hotel de Ville to hold a consultation. After a long deliberation they decided unanimously that the malady had a peculiar and mysterious character, which a post-mortem examination might throw light upon; but the operation was held as an imposible one, seeing the operator must inevitably tall a victim in a few hours. A dead pause followed this fearful declaration, when suddealy a surgeon named Guyon, in the prime of life and of great celebrity in his profession rose and said firmly, "Be it so, I will give myself for the safety of my beloved country. By to-morrow morn I will dissect a corpse. and write down what I observe." He went away, calmly made his will, confessed and received the sacrament. He then shut himself up with a man who had died with the plague. taking with him an inkstand, paper and a little crucifix. Full of enthusiasm he had never felt more firm or collected; kneeling before the corpse he wrote: 'I gaze without horror, even with joy I trust, by finding the secret cause of this terrible disease to show the way to some salutary remedy; and so will God bless my sacrifice and make it useful.'-He began-he finished the operation, and recorded in detail his surgical observations. He then threw the papers into a vase of vinegar, sought the lazarette, and died in twelve hours. 'Die,' we say? Nay, he lived .-What life so real as that which casts itself into future generations to be a lasting benefit to men? What better illustration of the Chief Shepherd's words, 'He that leseth his
